StaldFix Improves the Housing Environment

StaldFix is a new dry antiseptic agent, which has a desiccating effect on the stable floor thus reducing your costs.

The dry antiseptic agent StaldFix improves the housing environment and reduces the ammonia odour. The product can be used for all domestic animals and in all housing systems; further it protects floor and equipment, whether it is scattered or spread by a blower. Laboratory tests have proven the desiccating effect: After 24 hours 57 g water per 100 g StaldFix is tied up. This means that the living conditions for harmful bacteria and fungi are being considerably impaired.

Reduced Costs

Dairy Farmer Niels Peter Ladegaard, Vejen in Denmark, has 150 dairy cows and is one of the farmers, who have tried the product. Previously he has tried similar products, the use of StaldFix, however, has resulted in cubicles that are drier. He therefore expects to be able to reduce working hours as well as costs. StaldFix is easy to handle and dose, and the desiccating effect is much better compared to the product I used previously. I am also of the opinion that StaldFix will contribute to reducing the cell count in the milk, Niels Peter Ladegaard says.

StaldFix is a mineral-containing product that can be used for all domestic animals and all housing systems.
