Jewels : Effect of Far-Infrared Radiation

태양광선 분광표 (Electromagnetic Spectrum of Sunlight)

원적외선 방출

The radiation effects of far infrared radiation on the human body include the rise of subcutaneous atriium temperature, the expansion of fine blood vessels, the promotion of blood circulation, the enhancement of metabolism, and the growth of tissue regeneration capacity.

For example, in water at 30°C, warm energy is rarely felt, but we feel warm when exposed to the same temperature of sunlight, because the infrared rays contained in the sun penetrate deep into the skin and create heat inside.

This heat action helps eliminate germs that cause various diseases, and helps blood circulation and cell tissue production through capillary expansion.

In addition, it is known to help cell tissue activation, metabolism promotion, chronic fatigue, and sleep maintenance by shaking the cells minutely 2,000 times per minute when they touch the water and protein molecules that make up the cells.
